In May of 2017, Dave and Sheri Neff donated 36 acres of land to the Jefferson County Conservation Board which is now known as the “Neff Wetland”. The area was originally a wetland mitigation site for the DOT and that donation was made possible because of the collaboration of the Iowa Natural Heritage Foundation. The area will be used for environmental education purposes by the JCCB. Over 100 different species of birds have been documented in the area. This tract of land has excellent public access since the portion of the Fairfield Loop Trails runs through the center of the area.
